The United States is a committed partner to Africa and is excited to announce the creation of the African Civic Engagement Academy.

African Civic Engagement Academy

Develop your professional skills and acquire tools to improve community and government engagement in your country.

SUPPORTED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT, the African Civic Engagement Academy (ACEA) is a free online training program and networking opportunity for selected mid-career civil society and public leaders across sub-Saharan Africa.

The Academy is intended for professionals (ages 30-45) with demonstrated leadership experience in NGO, non-profit, or public sector roles.

Space is limited and applications are competititve. Participants will be expected to engage in peer discussions and prepare a peer-mentored action plan for civic engagement.

Participants will recieve a certificate from the University of Georgia, USA, upon completion. Up to 60 participants will be selected to attend a post-program African Civic Engagement Summit to be held in 2022.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

Selected participants will receive online instruction and participate in peer discussions organized into three short courses:

- Principles of Civic Engagement, including strategies for NGO, non-profit, and government sector leaders to advocate and engage with one another.
- Political Inclusion, covering steps that can be taken to improve the political and social inclusion of underrepresented communities.
- Media Management, including the role of old and new media as a bridge between government and civil society.
